A man in Wisconsin is reported to have been sunstruck, fell into a snowbank and froze to death. Once there was a liar who lost his voice trying to tell the truth.

Hon. J. C. Adams has been appointed as a member of the territorial fair commission by Governor Sloan. Despite his resignation and troubles attendant thereto, Adams has done great work with the fair and Governor Sloan has done well in re-appointing him.

The habit of certain papers in Arizona of stealing articles and reprinting them as original is becoming so fixed that it can hardly be called a habit any more; its really a gift. The machine made editorials are legitimate enough since they probably run an advertisement for them and get them fresh from 'way back east. The old boiler plate system really has merit as compared with either of the above habits.

Things that happen in politics are sometimes exceedingly amusing. For instance, a certain democratic paper was an enthusiastic supporter of the educational qualification law when it was on its passage in the legislature and accused its opponents of all sorts of mean things. In a recent election the same paper, with its usual consistency, wailed horribly and accused republicans of using the law to prevent an honest election. If there is any way to use such a law for the advancement of the interests of a party to the detriment of another, its a bad law.

The council has taken steps towards putting River de Flag in a safe condition to handle the annual floods. While they have a job of considerable dimensions on hand, it is work that should be done since it costs residents thousands of dollars in damages whenever there is a flood, aside from the inconvenience and damage to streets. Permanent street work is what Flagstaff should have, adding to it each year. It would not be long until people generally would assist in boosting it along, generally beautifying and making the city attractive. Patch work and temporary improvements never accomplish much. One permanent block a year would eventually bring about splendid results and be a monument to the foresight of the city officials.

The democrats seem now to be having their turn of scrambling for the citizen member of the territorial board of control, which office goes to some person of opposite political belief from the governor. The fellows that were erstwhile lambasting the republican administration are trying to show Governor Sloan that they really never did mean any of it, and in reality are almost republicans. Among those mentioned for the place as active candidates are Joe Dillon of Prescott, present chairman of the territorial democratic central committee, W. B. Kelley, the boss of the Kelley syndicate of democratic newspaper and J. S. Miles a hardware man at Globe. John Robinson was first mentioned for the place, but is understood to have withdrawn in favor of Joe Dillon. Jump in fellers the water's fine.

The recent decision of Judge Welborn of the federal district court of California to the effect that the collection of grazing fees on national forests and criminal prosecutions for trespass of stock thereon, is unconstitutional, appears mainly to be a decision that affects his judicial district, and until it is sanctioned or approved by the supreme court of the United States does not affect others. Among other things in his decision he says:

"It is held to be fundamental law that the citizen has the right to rely upon the statutes of the United States for the ascertainment of acts which constitute the offence. A citizen desiring to obey the law would search in vain to find that grazing sheep upon a forest reserve without the permission of the Secretary of Agriculture is a criminal offence."
